ABSTRACT

The Phenomenon of Women Migrating and Migrating Cino in the Minangkabau Community of Nagari Tanjung Barulak. Under the guidance of Prof. Dr. H. Harhanto MS as supervisor I, and Zulkifli Abdullah, S.Sos, MA as supervisor II, Social Development Study Program, Faculty of Social and Political Sciences, Mulawarman University. This study (1) aims to identify the causes of Minangkabau women starting to migrate, and the phenomenon of migrating cino among the Minangkabau people of Nagari Tanjung Barulak, (2) and analyzing the impact it has had on the area of origin of the phenomenon of migrating cino in the perspective of Minangkabau customary culture. The informant selection technique used in this study was purposive from migrants and. This research is a descriptive-qualitative study which describes: (1) the reasons why Minangkabau women are currently migrating, (2) the causes of the phenomenon of migrating cino among Minangkabau men, and the impact it has on their area of origin. The results of this study indicate that the reason why Minangkabau women are currently migrating is to fulfill their living needs as well as that of their families in their hometown and the reason for migrating Cino is due to family/ethnic disputes in their area of origin, because they violate adat (there is a saku marriage), because they no longer have other people, parents in the area of origin, because they follow their husbands (for women this is a new responsibility), financial constraints/economic factors, because they feel ashamed because they have not been able to mambangkik Batang Tarandam (change fate) even though they have wandered for a long time, the matrilineal kinship system (the mistake that only women who have the right to community sako and pusako).
